We have heard from the community that families want our fun, educational programming in the evening hours and at different times, such as when kids are sick or when mom and dad are making dinner. In response to this community need, on April 1st at 6 am we'll launch a brand new channel featuring your favorite PBS Kids shows 24 hours a day.

Research consistently shows that PBS Kids resources help prepare children of all backgrounds for school and that exposure to our programs builds literacy skills, boosts math learning and fosters social-emotional growth.

We are thrilled that we can provide this new tool for all families in our 18 county viewing area – whether you're at home, away from home, or on the go. Watch on TV channel 18.4 or download the free PBS Kids Video App

Austin City Limits
 Aug 5, 9: Nick Cave and the Bad Seeds
